

Are you interested in a career in food or agriculture?

This NEW certificate program might be for you:

Nutrition Policy and Food/Feed Regulations Certificate Program

To learn more visit our website

<https://publish.illinois.edu/nutritionpolicyfoodregulationscertificateprogram/>

or contact Anna Keck, Program Coordinator, Division of Nutritional Sciences at akeck@illinois.edu

To receive the Certificate you must complete

A. 3 required courses & at least 1 elective course (minimum 9 credit hours):

Required Courses: NUTR 510 Nutrition Policy; NUTR 510 Translating & Communicating Science; NUTR 510 Food Regulations OR ANSC 499 Feed Regulations

Elective Courses: NUTR 590 Applied Nutritional Policy Washington, DC; NUTR 590 Industry Immersion; NUTR593 Independent Study; NUTR 510 School Nutrition Programs and Policies; ANSC 424 Pet Food & Feed Manufacturing

B. In addition, you will have the opportunity to participate in 1:1 industry mentoring, annual professional development workshops, and other professional development activities.

Collaborators: Nutritional Sciences; Food Science & Human Nutrition Animal Sciences; Agricultural Leadership, Education & Communications;  ILLINOIS Agricultural & Consumer Economics; External: Companies & Governmental Agencies

Certificate Program Goal: Provide students with training to effectively support increasing regulatory needs and solve the challenges of food and agriculture in years to come.

This program is in part funded by USDA NIFA grant 2020-70003-32309

Division of Nutritional Sciences | University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign | nutrsci.illinois.edu