

Jahzae Wooten

Professor Hays

Rhet 105

3 May 16

Poverty and Education Review

While revising this essay, as like revising all of the other assignments, I learned the importance of rereading everything you write before submission. More importantly, I utilized a tip my high school english teacher I always told me to do, reading your paper aloud! After reading my paper aloud I can easily hear grammar errors and even check for conciseness. When editing this essay I corrected many grammar errors. Many of these errors could have been avoided if I took the time to read my paper aloud the first time. After making these changes my paper had an overall nicer flow. While revising this paper, I also followed many of Professor Mary's tips and replied to her comments. She suggested that I go into more detail when analyzing my sources, so I made those corrections as well. Furthermore, she recommended that I show the relationship between poverty and education in my title. I made this correction as well by adding just a few words. By doing this my readers have more of an idea on what to expect before even reading the essay. A good title is always important, as it either get readers to read more or not at all. Overall, many of my wiring skills were enhanced after writing this essay.