Rhetorical Composition of The Power of Civility Review

After revising this assignment I have a better understanding of the sources mentioned in the assignment as well as the purpose they serve. Some of the changes I made included being more detailed in my writing, grammar errors, and the focus of one my paragraphs. I made these changes by rereading the assignment and my first draft. After doing these things I was able to revise some of the invalid points I made in my first draft. Also, I took note of the comments made by Professor Hays and resolved those to the best of my ability. Things that were really helpful in this process is the assigned textbook for this class. It contained many solutions to the problems I made throughout the assignment. I was also able to re-work some of the points I made completely. Specifically, in my first draft I argued that the thesis was not directly stated in both sources. However, Professor Hays challenged this point and made me reevaluate this argument. After completing this particular assignment I learned that writers are not always right. It helped me think writing as a learning process. Furthermore, it emphasized why it is important to re-read, create multiple drafts and think of every piece of writing as an argument.
