

SCREENING NETWORKS OF HATE

October 21, 2016 | 7 PM

Spurlock Museum, Knight Auditorium, 600 S Gregory St., Urbana

ROKHAYA DIALLO
Journalist & Filmmaker

Featuring
pre-screening introduction
post-screening Q&A by Director Rokhaya Diallo

French journalist, writer and award winning filmmaker, Rokhaya Diallo will introduce her film, Networks of Hate at University of Illinois at Urbana Campaign. The film examines key areas, such as the effect of the internet and today's social networks and how they have become outlets through which innumerable racist, homophobic, and sexist ideas are expressed.

Due to Rokhaya's widely recognized work in favor of racial, gender and religious equality, she was targeted on Twitter in a call to rape. The violence of this action prompted her to engage in an investigation on cyber hate and freedom of speech online. During her investigation, she met several victims of cyber hate, both public personalities such as Audrey Pulvar, a popular TV host, and Christine Boutin, a politician, as well as everyday people harassed, for a variety of reasons or no reason at all. Throughout the film she poses questions such as "Is the Internet a vector of hatred?" And "Why do cyber haters favor social media?"

Networks of Hate documents Rokhaya's journey for justice against cyber hate. Join her for an enlightening story followed by Q&A.
