

Here are some links that help me with my writing life:

- Professor Mary's Grammar Page: Here you will find some general writing and grammar advice. If you don't see what you're looking for, write a comment on the page asking for what you need. Professor Mary may be able to create a new page to address your concern.
- Owl at Purdue: This is a great page for any kind of writing advice.
- Free Rice: Practice your English grammar and vocabulary with freerice.com. It is a very fun flashcard game. Professor Mary loves two things about this page:
  - It is a smart game. That is, it changes level based on your answers, so it gets progressively harder or easier to match your abilities.
  - It donates real grains of rice to the World Food Programme whenever you get a correct answer. You can see the rice pile up in a wooden bowl.
  - They also have games for other topics. My favorite is the famous paintings. (Okay, that's three things.)
