As stated throughout the website, I learned a lot of information from that. I learned how to correctly cite a sources with MLA format. Also creating this essay I learned a lot about using other students as tools to help my writing. Not only in the Workshop group, but also in then research speed dating I learned how to incorporate people suggestions to better my writing. The multi layers of this essay reiterated the need for process. We first went through a process of creating a topic. After that we created a Childs draft that we not only revised, but also added to it. While revising this essay I took much advantage of professor Hayes comments. Some of my points need clarity and further explanation. I have notice throughout my different pieces of writing work, I tend to not go into much detail form time and time. Revising this essay has taught me that elaborating your idea thoroughly is important. If the author does not fully explain his or her thoughts the reader is more likely to get confused.
