UX Fundamentals

Week 14:
Final Presentation Prep

April 26 2021

Siebel
Center for Design

Today's Agenda:

- 10:05 - 10:15AM
  Expectations for next week's presentations

- 10:15 - 11:50AM
  Breakout rooms + open work time and discussion

Next week's presentations

Purpose
Present the overall story of your process this semester,
as you would to a senior stakeholder in a company,
or if you were to present your work during a job interview

Outcome
Indicate what you would recommend as next steps,
if you were to move forward in your process

Next week's presentations

Structure - approximately 10 slides
Your team should tell the whole story of your process:
- What did you do to understand your challenge?
- Where were these learnings? How did you frame your challenge initially?
- How did this play into your first design iteration?
- How did you evaluate your design concepts?
- Who did you speak with and what did you learn?
- What are your final recommendations and why?
- What would next steps be?

Next week's presentations

- Show up on time.
  - We need to start right at 10:00am to fit all presentations in!

- Pick a team lead ahead of time to share slides.
  - One of you should have your deck open and ready to share screen - and we should know ahead of time who this is!

- Export your presentation deck and be prepared to post to the #presentation-3 Slack channel immediately before you present.
  - This way, we can start a thread for the class to provide feedback as you present.

Order of presentations on May 3!

- Group 5
- Group 4
- Group 2
- Group 6
- Group 7
- Group 1
- Group 3
- Group 8

Breakout rooms + ICES Evaluations

- We'll send you to breakout rooms now, to allow for some group work time
- If you would like to, use the first 10-15 minutes to complete your ICES course evaluation form online at https://ices.citl.illinois.edu/
